Council at Work Session Explores Role of City in Support of Arts

by Steve Galanis

At a recent city council work session, cultural arts advocates urged the council to adopt an arts policy that would promote and accommodate the full expression of the arts in Greenbelt. Representatives of both the visual and performing arts attended the August 31 work session to seek support for permanent facilities.

A Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) report accepted by council on August 24 provided much of the context for discussion at the meeting. In the report, PRAB chairman Keith Chernikoff reminded council of an earlier board recommendation that the cultural arts policy of the city be studied before committing funds to the Greenbelt Arts Center or the Utopia Theater on a long-term basis. Included in the report were recommendations to resolve outstanding issues concerning the city's role in funding the arts.

Members of the arts community stated early in the meeting that they want a performing arts center at the Roosevelt Center and a visual arts center at the North End school. However, attention at the work session focused on PRAB's recommendation for a task force to develop an arts policy that could address such goals.

Task Force Structure

Two contrasting ideas for the form of such a task force surfaced at the meeting: 1) an independent committee, whose findings and recommendations are reported directly to the city council; 2) a subcommittee of PRAB, whose findings and recommendations go through PRAB before going to council.

Mayor Weidenfeld explained that the PRAB subcommittee option was the more practical approach. He pointed out that an independent body required the individual appointment of all members by the city council - a process that could not begin until a resolution establishing such a body was passed and all position openings properly advertised. According to Weidenfeld, PRAB could recruit people for the proposed task much faster, since it is a standing advisory board with authority to organize subcommittees. In addition, Weidenfeld said that the PRAB subcommittee approach supplied needed expertise in communicating technical information to council. Isaacs added that PRAB was made up of people with a proven concern for Greenbelt's welfare, who desired a part in developing the city's arts policy.

People closely identified with the arts disagreed with this approach. Konrad Herling, vice president of the Greenbelt Arts Center, said he feared too much control by PRAB over the outcome of the policy-making process. Albert Herling also disagreed with the approach, saying it gave PRAB the right to veto the proposals of the committee. Herling, a long-time supporter of the arts in Greenbelt, is on the Board of Trustees of the Prince Georges Arts Council. Councilmember Toni Bram said the PRAB subcommittee approach would water down the overall effort.

Although a consensus was never reached on the type of committee for creating an arts policy, agreement did emerge as to who should serve on it. City Manager James K. Giese noted that any adopted policy entailing city funding must inevitably compete with other programs. He said a financial commitment by the city to such a policy over the long-run needed a broad base of citizen support. Because of this consideration, arts supporter Barbara Simon accepted the idea of a task

Council Approves Plan for Parcel 15

by Diane Oberg

At its August 24 regular meeting, the Greenbelt City Council accepted the Advisory Planning Board report on the Roosevelt Center, approved development plans for Parcel 15 near the lake park and agreed to modifications to the improvements the Greenbrook developer is required to make to Hanover Parkway.

Board Reports

Council accepted the Advisory Planning Board's report on the parking and circulation designs for the Roosevelt Center proposed by landscape architects Coffin and Coffin. APB recommended approval of the plan placing the traffic islands in the east and west parking lots in an east-west alignment rather than the current north-south alignment to minimize pedestrian/vehicle conflicts. The plan also would replace the angled parking with straight-in parking, and allow two-way traffic in the parking lanes. The report will be on the agenda of the October 5 regular council meeting. The September council meeting was cancelled.

Council also accepted the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board's report on Arts Policy Development, which recommends establishment of a task force. This group would propose strategies to: (1) enrich the lives of the citizens by providing the opportunity to learn about, participate in and observe the arts; (2) provide a variety of programs in all fields of the arts; (3) establish a visual arts center at the North End Center and (4) support an arts center at the Roosevelt Center. This report was discussed at an August 31 council work session and will be on the agenda for the October council meeting.

Strategic Planning

Council received a written report from the Strategic Planning Coordinating Committee on the goals and objectives identified by the strategic planning subcommittee. The coordinating committee has directed the subcommittees to better define and schedule the steps necessary to achieve the objectives. This work is to be completed by September 30.

Legislation

Final approval was given to legislation that will:

- Change the penalties charged for past-due taxes to equal those charged by the county, beginning with next year's billings, since the county will assume the responsibility for municipal tax collection. The penalty on real property taxes was decreased from one to three-quarters percent per month, while that for personal property taxes was set at three-quarters percent per month versus a flat charge of five percent currently charged by the city.

- Establish a Roadside Cleaning Crew to be financed by a portion of the landfill tipping fee rebate.

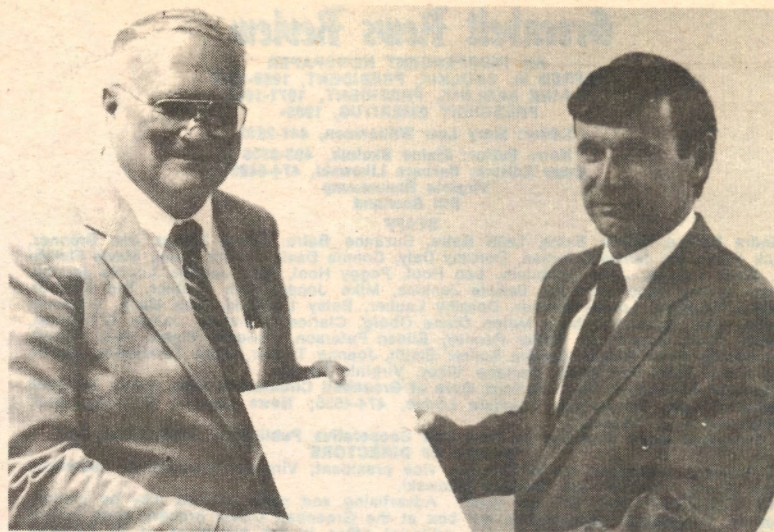

Bicycle Traffic

Council member Joseph Isaacs reported observing an incident where members of a metropolitan area bicycle club ran a stop sign on Lastner Lane at Ivy Lane, nearly striking a child. Isaacs said that the offending rider, without stopping, responded by yelling at the child's father. Isaacs estimated that the bicyclists were traveling approximately 40 miles per hour. He requested that the police patrol

New Council is Sworn In

by Steve Galanis

Greenbelt's five re-elected officials pledged to fulfill their duties of office at the first meeting of the new council Monday, Sept. 21.

A packed council chamber audience watched the council quickly organize itself according to the election results of the preceding week. Acting as the incumbent mayor at the outset of the meeting, Gil Weidenfeld administered the oath of office to the newly elected council members. Because Weidenfeld finished first in the election, he was voted in by council as the new mayor. He was then sworn in by the county circuit court clerk Norman Pritchett. The council also voted in Joseph Isaacs as the mayor pro tem because of his second place finish in the elections.

The swearing-in ceremony was part of a larger celebration that night. The city government's staff hosted a reception to honor the new council and to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the council manager form of government in Greenbelt. A buffet and bar, set up by the Ladies Auxiliary to the Fire Department, and fire department members, helped set the tone of celebration. Among the guests of the council and city attending the night's events were Congressman Steny Hoyer, County Executive Parris Glendening, County Council member Richard Castaldi, State Senator Leo Green, and State Delegate Charles "Buzz" Ryan.

Each of the council members expressed their hopes for the city - some zeroing in on the next two years while others were a little more futuristic.

Mayor Weidenfeld summarized the main tasks of the city over the next two years. He highlighted the following matters: (1) the completion of the bond issue projects—a new police building, the new indoor pool, the renovation of the outdoor pool, Schrom Hills Park and other park improvements, and parkland acquisition; (2) the rehabilitation of Roosevelt Center; (3) overseeing development within the city; (4) alleviating traffic congestion, particularly in Greenbelt East, and blocking the proposed extension of Kenilworth Avenue to Virginia Manor Road, and (5) pressing for improvements to the Kenilworth Avenue/Greenbelt Road interchange.

Weidenfeld said he looked forward to the next two years with much excitement and enthusiasm "because of the promise of new facilities and programs. I believe that we will see more new city facilities and programs coming to completion in Greenbelt during the next two years than we have seen in the last decade," said the mayor. Addressing the issues of development and traffic congestion, Weidenfeld said the council needed to be firm with developers' requests for increased densities and changes in zoning. He said the council must also press the county executive for promised road improvements.

Weidenfeld said he would soon propose a change in the city's election process to council. Although saying he was not for changing the city charter, he proposed instead that an advisory question be included on voting cards allowing citizens to choose the candidate they wanted for mayor. The council would still vote for the mayor, he said, but it would have citizen input in the matter.

Speaking after Weidenfeld, mayor pro tem Joseph Isaacs responded to the list of issues by

Public Hearing Next Week on Planning Bills

Two bills pertaining to planning and development are currently under consideration by the Prince Georges County Council. One, CB114 (also known as the Adequate Public Facilities Bill) would require that before a proposed development can be approved, public facilities adequate to serve the development must be in place or scheduled. This bill was proposed by County Councilman Richard Castaldi, former Mayor of Greenbelt. A public hearing for CB114 is scheduled for October 5 at 8:30 a.m. at the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro.

The second bill, CB104, would prohibit the inclusion into the official record of remarks made at public hearings. Thus, oral comments and statements from principals involved in those cases, as well as oral comments and responses from Council members, would not be available for use in appeals or for court proceedings. A public hearing for CB104 is scheduled for October 6 at 1:30 p.m.

Citizens wishing to express their views on these bills are encouraged to call Councilman Castaldi 952-3034.

Museum Guides Meet For Training Session

by Sandra Barnes

The Greenbelt Museum at 10-B Crescent Road will open to the public during Homecoming Weekend, October 10. In addition to an original sink for a masonry home and a kitchen counter top, the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM) are looking for a number of other items.

These include chenille bedspreads for a single and a double bed, a double mattress, pillows, an original bathroom sink, original cushions for the living room chairs, a shaving mug and brush, table cloths, doilies and a rag rug for the kitchen. Also needed is copper screening for the screen doors. Anyone who would like to donate one or more of these items, please contact Martha Sinden, 345-1669, or Mary Linstrom, 474-7951.

In preparation for the opening FOGM board members conducted docent training on Saturday, September 26 for the volunteers who will serve as guides. During the full day session at the Greenbelt Library, Sandra Barnes and Don Volk gave background information on how FOGM came into being and the relationship between FOGM and the Museum. Alan Virta recounted the important names and dates that all guides will need to know. The four most important dates include 1935, when construction first began; 1937, when the first families began to move in; 1952, when the federal government sold Greenbelt; and 1940, when the frame houses were constructed.

Virta suggested that the three most important people among the hundreds who were involved in Greenbelt's early history are Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt, and Rexford Guy Tugwell who headed the Resettlement Administration and was responsible for building Greenbelt. Among the most important elements that make Greenbelt unique are: being built and operated by the federal government; being a planned community; organizing into cooperatives, which suggested a new way of living; having persons selected to live in Greenbelt. Also important to note are that Greenbelt was controversial from the start (its architectural style thought by some to be unAmerican); and it was an experiment to show private industry how to build efficient, economical housing for low to moderate income persons.

Christina O'Boyle then taught the volunteers some basic techniques of interpretation. This was followed by a tour of the Museum. Approximately 20 people took part in the training.

Letters to the Editor

Two "Greenbelt Pioneers"

To the Editor:

Greenbelt's 50th anniversary is upon us and I suppose we all have our reasons for celebrating this occasion. I would like to share with you my special reason, my late grandparents Allen and Alta Morrison. They were one of Greenbelt's first families, moving to 58-H Crescent with their three small children in October 1937.

During Greenbelt's early years, granddad was very active in the city government, serving on the City Council and as Mayor. He was on the GHI Board of Directors and in later years was President of the Golden Age Club. The Morrison Lounge in the Youth Center and Morrison Drive in Glen Ora were dedicated to him for his contributions to the city.

Grandma was true to her nature, standing solidly behind him encouraging him to get involved in civic matters to keep this community one to be proud of.

Grandma and granddad have passed away (granddad in 1973 and grandma in 1986). Now, on Labor Day, during the carnival and the beauty pageant, along with a host of other activities, they come back, just for a while. I sure wish granddad was here to see his great-grandchildren growing up in Greenbelt. Grandma was fortunate; she did.

These memories and being here truly make Greenbelt great!!!

Patricia (Clute) King

THANKS

To the Editor:

I would like to express my sincerest appreciation to all those who helped in my campaign and who showed their confidence in me with their votes in the recent election.

It has been a distinct honor for me to have served the citizens of Greenbelt as a city council member for the past 16 years and as your mayor for nine of those years, and a special honor to serve as Greenbelt's mayor during our 50th anniversary.

I pledge to you my best efforts during the next two years. I will continue to work hard to make Greenbelt even greater

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld

THANKS

To the Editor:

Thank you seems such an inadequate phrase to express our feelings for all the people who offered help during Jake's illness, and then shared our loss with such kindness, compassion and love

We will never forget you.

We also want to thank the Greenbelt Rescue Squad and the members of the Mobile Intensive Care Unit for their prompt response to our call for help.

Although their efforts were in vain, we are deeply grateful for their kindness and concern.

Gordon-Castaldi

Ann Gordon and former mayor Richard Castaldi were married on August 15 at Martin's Crosswinds. The candlelight, double ring ceremony was conducted by Father Vincent Donovan and Rabbi Harold White. Joining the bride and groom under the lace, floral canopy were the groom's parents, long-time Greenbelt residents Marie and Edward Castaldi and the bride's mother, Elaine Gordon of Pasadena, Md., who was escorted by Sam Gordon, brother of the bride's late father, Harold Gordon. The groom's best man was Mayor Gil Weidenfeld.

Black and white with silver touches was the color theme for the evening. The bride's designer gown was of white beaded lace, her headpiece a flower wreath with crystal and pearl accents. Wearing long black satin gowns with ruffled sleeves and white headpieces were Gordon's matron of honor, Barbara Gladys and bridesmaids Joan Adelman, Lois Gordon and Tina Castaldi daughter of the groom, who sang "Nobody Loves You Like I Do."

Groomsmen included Thomas Milbourne, Larry Gordon, Norman Jones and Joe Behun. Keira Bresnahan, Castaldi's niece, served as flower girl.

About 250 relatives, friends and political figures attended the wedding ceremony and reception.

Born in Greenbelt, Castaldi attended Greenbelt schools and the University of Maryland. Prior to his election to the county council in 1982, he served on the Greenbelt city council and was also the city's mayor.

Gordon, a graduate of Northern Illinois University, was a special education teacher in the county's school system before signing on as Castaldi legislative aide. She also served as his campaign manager in 1982 and in 1986.

The couple, who spent their honeymoon in Italy, will be moving into their new home in Greenbelt's Greenbrook subdivision sometime this winter. Tina Castaldi, a junior at Roosevelt High School, will reside with them.

Reed-Dies

Long-time Greenbelt residents Kathryn Reed and Robert Dies were married on September 20 at the home of friends. The service was conducted by Dr. Scott Rutan, a former minister and now professor of psychology at Harvard Medical School in Boston. Marilyn Meyers of Bethesda and Roy MacKenzie of Houston were matron-of-honor and best man respectively. Craig Dies, son of the groom, escorted his father and presented him with the family wedding band; Robert Reed, son of the bride escorted his mother and Kristina Reed, daughter, read a love sonnet. Also participating in the ceremony were long-time friends Saul and Rosalyn Scheidlinger, Evelyn Gearhart, mother of the bride, and fathers of the couple, Raymond Dies and Robert "Lefty" Gearhart. Jane Dies, mother of the groom now deceased, was represented symbolically by the new Mrs. Dies. A traditional reception followed.

The Dies will take a delayed Caribbean honeymoon later this year.

that area to ensure that bikers obey the traffic laws.

Council member Antoinette Bram reported that she had had a request from a Laurel Hill resident that the Research Road gate to the Agricultural Research Center be opened 24 hours a day and provide an alternate route into and out of Greenbelt. However, Bram said that residents of Research Road were opposed to opening the gates because of the increased bicycle traffic this would attract. Bram suggested exploring what legal options the city has to cope with problem cyclists.

Research Road resident Eunice Coxon said the closing of the Research Road gate was "a kindness" to the farm and the city.

Parcel 15

The preliminary plan of subdivision for Parcel 15, the slice of land between Charlestowne Village and the Beltway, was approved by council. The Milton Company plans to build 98 residential townhouses and 46 office townhouses on the parcel.

APB determined that the plan is consistent with all past city approvals, agreements and understandings and recommended approval.

In response to questions by Bram, Milton Company's attorney Ed Gibbs said that construction equipment would not be permitted on the ten-acre parcel adjoining the lake park that is to be deeded to the city. They will also continue their efforts to get State Highway Administration approval for a traffic light at the intersection of Lakecrest Drive and Greenbelt Road.

Gibbs told council member Edward Putens that the land in the parcel currently used by residents of Charlestowne North Apartments for parking will continue to be so used.

Other Actions

In other actions the council:

- Approved the request by Porten and Sullivan, developers of a portion of Greenbelt, to modify plans for improvements to Mandan Road because of drainage problems that would result if the road were extended, as required, to the Pepco right-of-way. Instead, the developer will pave ten fewer feet of road and grade the city's right-of-way to direct stormwater to existing drainage channels. At the suggestion of Bram, council approved the change, but required the developer to place in escrow for seven years, funds equal to the cost of the additional paving.

- Referred the proposed Greenbelt Foundation to the Community Relations Advisory Board for review. The Foundation was recommended by Bram to accept gifts and donations to be used to benefit Greenbelt groups.

"Sweet Charity" Playing At National Thru Oct. 17

"Sweet Charity", the comedy about Charity Hope Valentine, the dance-hall hostess with a heart-of-gold, opened at the National Theatre and will run through October 17. Donna McKechnie, who won a Tony Award for her performance in "A Chorus Line" is cast in the title role.

The musical is based on a book by Neil Simon with music by Cy Coleman, lyrics by Dorothy Fields and staging and choreography by Bob Fosse. Gwen Verdon, star of the original Broadway production, assisted Fosse in reproducing the original choreography for this new edition of "Sweet Charity".

force drawn from the community-at-large. However, she said the group had to be strongly represented by arts advocates in order for arts professionals in the community to support it.

Task Force Purpose

Tom Renahan, vice-chairman of PRAB, clarified the proposed committee's task by dividing it into four parts: 1) To define the city's role in the encouragement and promotion of the arts, the scope of that role, 2) to show how the city's role could best be coordinated organizationally, 3) to show how the needed facilities could be obtained and managed, and 4) to show how funds could be raised to operate programs, and how these funds would be managed. Renahan offered these guidelines for the proposed committee after councilmember, Thomas X. White in particular, suggested that committee work be done in phases to avoid confusion.

White suggested that the task force deal solely with the general objective of outlining the broad policy before handling specific objectives. Councilmember Edward V. J. Putens stressed that public input on all task force pro-telling the audience plainly that tough decisions lay ahead for the council. Isaacs said he would approach his actions on the council with open eyes and ears and an open heart, "looking at each issue individually and at all facts judiciously."

NEW COUNCIL

As with previous speakers, council member Thomas White also addressed the agenda over the next two years. White emphasized however, the council's need to be attuned to the individual needs of Greenbelters. He praised the role of elections in bringing candidates in direct contact with citizens. In his concluding remark, White pointed out that the newly organized council was starting on Greenbelt's next 50 years. "What we do as a council is that important" he added.

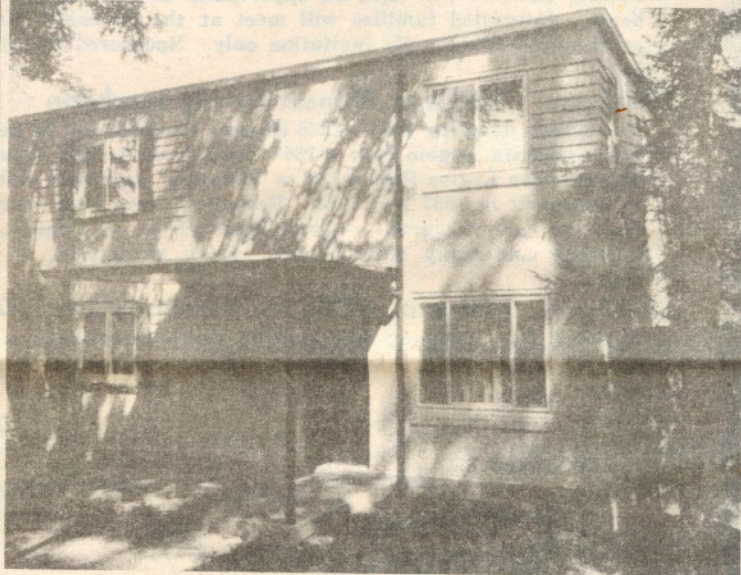

Council member Edward Putens addressed two basic challenges of council deciding which programs and projects to fund, and what to do about taxation. Putens said despite what previous councils have done, there are issues that haven't been dealt with yet such as the needs of senior citizens. Putens said he would make sure the council would look into previously unaddressed areas.

Speaking behind her colleagues, council member Antoinette Bram said Greenbelters are fighting for survival against the onslaught of development, and other pressures. She said council would have to make its decisions by putting people ahead of the various places to be dealt with such as traffic and building sites.

The reception at the firehouse was also planned as an opportunity to honor servers on the city's advisory boards who had resigned during the year. Few newly retired board members, however, were on hand to receive certificates of appreciation.

JOIN THE Greenbelt Museum!

With the opening of the historic Greenbelt Museum at 10-B Crescent Road, the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM) has launched a special drive for contributors to the newly-established Roosevelt Club. Members of the Roosevelt Club will be given special recognition at museum events including free admission to future fund-raisers, and will have their names displayed on a plaque to be hung in the Museum. The club was established to permit individuals and families to make a special, one-time $500 contribution to the Museum in the same manner as local business establishments are doing. Contributors of $100 will have their names placed in a special Donors' Book to be placed in the Museum.

The Greenbelt Museum is operated by the non-profit FOGM, a group of community volunteers dedicated to promoting the history of Greenbelt from its New Deal roots to the present. FOGM also serves to strengthen an understanding and appreciation of Greenbelt's unique planning and architectural elements as well as community life.

"To Your Smile"

Dr. Ray Vidal

How can the cost of dental care be kept down?

By doing two simple things on your own you can substantially lower dental care costs. First, establish and maintain a preventive program at home. Most dental problems are preventable. Your family dentist can guide you and suggest the methods best suited to your needs.

Second, have regular examinations. If a problem should develop, it can be diagnosed and treated at an early stage. A simple filling is far less expensive than the complications arising from an untreated cavity.

Your teeth should last a lifetime. Proper home care and regular professional check-ups can help assure this.

ROYAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

Student Art Exhibit Invites Competitors

Cash prizes and gift certificates totaling $250 will be awarded to the high school student winners of the Greenbelt 50th Anniversary Student Art Exhibition.

The October 8-10 art competition will also include elementary and middle school students. Entrants in the exhibition must submit their work for showing Thursday, October 8, between 2 and 6 p.m. in the lower level lobby of the Greenbelt library.

The exhibition will be open to the public from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, October 10, at the Greenbelt Center School. Prizes will be awarded at 2 p.m. A reception will follow the awards.

Competition will be in five categories: drawing, painting, print-making, mixed media and photography. A best-of-the-show $25 prize, contributed by the Prince Georges County Education Association, will be awarded. Chaselle, Inc. an art supply distributor, has provided five $20 gift certificates for winners in the five art categories. The Mellon Bank has contributed $15 and $10 second and third place cash prizes in each of the five competitive categories.

The cash and certificate awards will be given only to the high school students showing their works. The younger students will be awarded certificates and ribbons marking their participation in the 50th Anniversary celebration event.

Although the students were to be told of the competition in their schools, students who have not heard of the show can still submit their works for display October 8. Exhibitors are invited to call school board member Suzanne Plogman, 345-8397, for more information about the event.

Senior Citizens Invited To Attend Spiritual Retreat

St. Hugh's Ladies of Charity cordially invite the Senior Citizens of the community to a Day of Recollection (one day spiritual retreat) at Green Ridge House, on Tuesday October 6 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The day will include mass and a luncheon. There is no fee.

50 Years Ago In Greenbelt

Fifty years ago today, the builders of Greenbelt were putting the finishing touches on the new town. Within a few weeks, families would begin moving into their new homes—starting lives built on new dreams. To fully understand the publicity that the new city was getting, current Greenbelters must visit the Tugwell Room of the Greenbelt Library. There, they will find folders filled with original clippings of the many, many news articles that were circulating throughout the country about this bold experiment - Greenbelt.

In mid-September 1937 many of the newspaper articles were concentrating on the cooperative aspects of the new town. Some articles described cooperative activities in the U.S. while a number concentrated on comparing the experiment at Greenbelt to the larger cooperative movement in Europe. Individual writers were producing articles on Greenbelt for local papers and the larger papers and news services such as Associated Press (AP) prepared works that were picked up by large and small papers virtually from coast to coast.

An AP article in the St. Joseph, Md. Press News pointed out the positive aspects of the cooperative movement emphasizing that there were already between 1 and 2 million US members of cooperatives. Figures showed that world wide membership was over 100,000,000 families.

Other articles painted a different picture - one that was to be repeated: "The development has been criticized as communistic; but if that be the case, then there are thousands who want to go the way that Russia has gone." That quote was part of article documenting the large numbers of families who were applying for residence in Greenbelt.

Advertising Age ran a story entitled "Grocers Fight U.S. Deal with Cooperatives." The National Association of Retail Grocers had filed a protest with the Resettlement Administration over deals made with the cooperative corporation formed by Edward Filene. The Association "emphatically objects to any policy or arrangement under which the government extends to consumer cooperatives advantages it does not . . . extend to other business enterprises."

Controversy - the story of Greenbelt. Read the original articles and see pictures of Greenbelt as it appeared 50 years ago.

Pioneers Celebrate 60 Year Marriage

Salvatore and Dorothy Gussio of 62 Crescent Road eloped to be married on September 17, 1927. In celebration of their 60th anniversary, their children, Ellen Domchick, Carl Gussio and Betty May Shifflet had a surprise family dinner for them on Sunday, September 20, at DaMimmo's Restaurant in Baltimore's Little Italy. In addition to their children, Mr. and Mrs. Gussio's grandchildren and great-grandchildren celebrated with them.

"Dot" and "Toto," as they are known to their friends, moved to Greenbelt in June 1938 and resided at 2-J Westway. This was home to their children who attended Greenbelt Center School and graduated from Greenbelt High School (now Greenbelt Middle School). After their children married, each of them lived in Greenbelt at various addresses. Their daughter, Betty May Shifflet has resided at 19 Hillside since 1953. Mr. and Mrs. Gussio moved from Westway to their present home in 1954.

Released by the Greenbelt
Police Department

On Wednesday, September 23 at about 5:30 p.m. a resident man allegedly threatened a process server with a shotgun when the latter came to the man's door attempting to serve civil papers. After the process server left and reported the incident to the Greenbelt police, several officers responded and arrested James Hall, 50, of 167 Westway. The police took 18 guns from the residence for safekeeping. According to the police, there was an active stolen gun report on one of the guns. Hall was charged with theft of the gun and with assault with intent to murder. He was taken to Hyattsville, where he appeared before the District Court Commissioner. He was released on personal recognizance.

On September 19 at 12:54 a.m. officers responded to a report of a person with gunshot wounds in the Beltway Plaza. The victim, who had a minor head wound, said that he had been shot while sitting in front of the Golden Dome Arcade. According to witnesses, police indicated, the gun used was a pellet gun. The area was checked for the suspects and the suspect vehicle, but without result.
